

Week #1

composer (n) one who writes music generous (adj) giving in abundance

Week #2

abrupt (adj) unexpected, quick beckon (v) to signal with a nod, wave; lure

Week #3

foe (n) enemy
gusto (adj) with great enjoyment

Week #4

covet (v) to crave, often to crave something that someone else has heir (n) someone who is legally entitled to inherit a title or property of another

Week #5

kudos (n) praise, glory myth (n) a traditional tale usually used to explain why the world is the way it is or how the world was created

Week #6

lull (v) to cause to sleep, to soothe and calm (n) a period of calm or quiet resume (v) to start again

Week #7

impromptu (adj) said or done without preparation omit (v) to leave out

Week #8

potent (adj) powerful timid (adj) shy, easily scared

Week #9

loaf (v) to be lazy, to spend time doing nothing or very little adorn (v) to decorate

Week #10

canine (n) of or like a dog, or having to do with dogs defect (v) to abandon one country to take refuge in or become a citizen of another (n) a flaw

Week #11

bleak (adj) gloomy, dark and depressing shrewd (adj) clever

Week #12

debris (n) broken pieces of something that has been destroyed feline (n) cat (adj) cat-like

Week #13

pending (adj) not yet occurring or happening yet reap (v) to gain as a result of effort

Week #14

cumbersome (adj) unwieldy and burdensome vestibule (n) small entrance or hall or lobby

Week #15

amass (v) to accumulate sentinel (n) a guard

Week #16

maneuver (v) to move or handle skillfully irony (n) an event or result that is the opposite of what is expected

Week #17

scour (v) to make a thorough search maim (v) to injure so that a part of the body is lost or unstable

Week #18

astray (adj) off the right path splendor (n) a great display of riches or beautiful objects

Week #19

exodus (n) a departure of a lot of people gape (v) to stare with open mouth

Week #20

humble (adj)_ modest, meek, not boastful or proud jeopardy (n) danger, risk of harm

Week #21

irk-(v) to annoy; to bother obsolete-(adj) out of date, no longer useful; no longer in use

Week #22

forgery- (n) fake or copy; the act of making such a fake copy query (n) a question

Week #23

apprehensive (adj) nervous, uneasy, unsure vandal (n) someone who destroys or harms another person's property on purpose

Week #24

flail (v) to wave or swing swiftly or violently debut (n) a beginning of a career or course of action

Week #25

hygiene (n) practices that support good health mingle-(v) to mix together

Week #26

sulk (v) to be silent, unfriendly; bad-tempered inscription (n) something that is written or carved

Week #27

nimble (adj) quick, light or agile in movement scarce (adj) short in supply

Week #28

discern (v) to detect with the eyes; to know, to understand, to recognize presume (v) to expect or assume with confidence; to understand without permission

Week #29

envelope (v) to surround or close complete nurture (v) training or education, upbringing to father develop

Week #30

gait (n) manner of moving on foot; style of moving meager (adj) having little flesh; lack of richness

Week #31

compassion (n) sorrow or pity caused by suffering or misfortune hoard (n) a hidden supply or fund in storage

(v) to take more than acceptable

Week #32

avert (v) to turn away; to keep from happening deplete (v) to reduce in amount by using up; exhausting the supply of something

Week #33

relinquish (v) to withdraw or retreat; leave behind, to give over control or possession endure (v) to continue the same state; to bear patiently or tolerate

Week #34

poise (n) state of balance or stability; composure; freedom from embarrassment futile (adj) having no useful result; trifling, frivolous; idle

Week #35

ponder (v) to weigh in the mind with thoroughness and care; to reflect with care perish (v) to die or be destroyed especially a violent death (like Christ)

Week #36

prosper (v) to be fortunate or successful, especially in finances; to thrive distort (v) to twist or misshape; to give false or misleading accounts of information; to cause to work in :

ated; a story that is not really true, but often repeated a twisted or disorderly manner